

First Nations, Métis and Inuit

National Day for Truth and Reconciliation and Beyond

The week of September 27 - October 1, 2021 represents Reconciliation Week. We are focusing on Truth, Reconciliation and Beyond. Reconciliation is a process that goes far beyond the scope of one day or even one week. It takes time and will include all of us. Over the course of this week you will be emailed a special focus for the day. Knowing, Being and Doing will guide our understanding of the importance of identity and reconciliation. Our goal is to celebrate the strength, resiliency, culture, achievement, and vibrancy of our First Nations, Métis, and Inuit communities. Check out our upcoming emails throughout the week and mid-month starting in October.

September 27th — October 1st

Monday, September 27th

- Learn some introductions in Blackfoot
- Get to know our First Nations, Métis and Inuit Support Workers and Grad Coaches

- Find out the meaning behind our logo

Tuesday, September 28th

Tanealle Shade; a former CCH student will tell her story about identity and her perspective on reconciliation.

Wednesday, September 29th

- Orange Shirt Day
- Tea and Bannock Session (3:30-4:30pm). Everyone is invited to our virtual gathering "Oksisawaat" (Visiting)

Thursday, September 30th

- University of Alberta Indigenous Canada (Free online course)

Friday, October 1st

- Time to reflect and make a plan that exceeds well beyond today...a journey of reconciliation. Questions to ponder: What does reconciliation mean to you? What is your role in reconciliation?

Oohkaanaayikaakii'moap
(We are all striving for success)

Remember to look for our upcoming emails throughout the week and mid-month starting in October!

